FLAMING YOUTH

An Expose So Daring the Author Dared Not Sign
His Real Name

"To the ultra modern woman of the period, restless, seductive, greedy, discontented, craving sensation, unrestrained, a little morbid, more than a little selfish, intelligent, uneducated, sybaritic, following blind instincts and perverse fancies, slack of mind as she is trim in body, neurotic and vigorous, a worshiper of tinsel gods at perfumed altars, fit mate for the hurried, reckless and cynical man of the age, predestined mother of—what manner of being? To her I dedicate this study of herself."

The above is the dedication of "Warner Fabian," author of "Flaming Youth," from which book the picture is taken. The picture, as the book, is a startling expose of ultra modern society, with its search for new sensations. The story is so intimate the author hid his identity under a nom de plume. Whether the author be a man or a woman is not known, but the writer claims to be a physician who sees through the body to the soul. "Flaming Youth" will amaze you with its daring disclosures.
